

Meaningfulness at work in Denmark

How can we make more organizations more meaningful in 2022 and beyond?

Voluntās

Understanding meaningfulness in Denmark 2022

At Voluntās, everything we do is to make more lives more meaningful.

Meaningfulness is the feeling that your life has dignity and hope. Not evaluated in every moment, but as the sum of your past and present life and of the life that lies ahead of you. That, we know, is the best possible condition for human potential to be realized.

Our Center for Applied Meaningfulness measures and explores the impact of meaningfulness on human beings and societies. The center rests on the assumption that meaningfulness is a better way of measuring societal well-being or human progress than existing indexes for material and human development such as GDP. This Danish Meaningfulness Report 2022 is based on survey data collected between December 2021 and March 2022.

About Voluntās

With more than 65 human beings in six offices on four continents, Voluntās is one of the fastest growing consultancies born out of the Nordics.

Management consultants by profession and philosophers by heart, we specialize in advising companies, foundations, owners, boards, leaders and governments on how to create, adapt and drive meaningful organizations, brands, societies and planet.

The MWQ

What is the Meaningful Work Quotient?

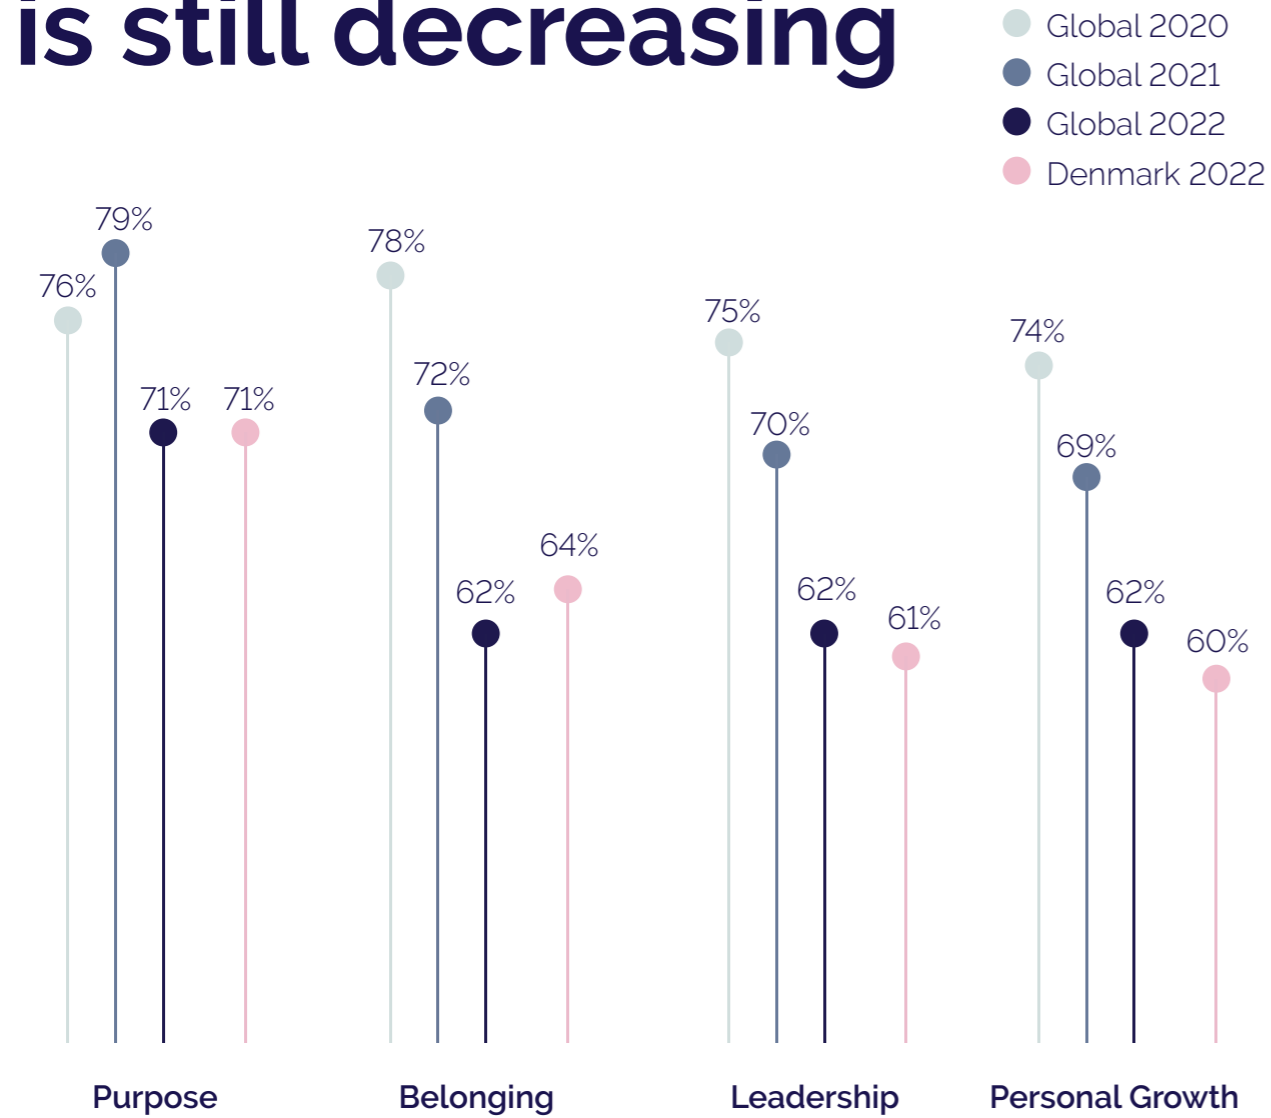

The Meaningful Work Quotient is based on four drivers of meaningfulness. At Voluntās' Center for Applied Meaningfulness, we have analyzed every piece of research, poetry, and empirical industry data about what makes work meaningful.

We have conducted the MWQ-survey across all significant industries, functions, hierarchy levels, age groups and geographies, amongst 30 different countries. This white paper will focus on meaningfulness within organizations in Denmark.

Condensing our learnings into drivers of meaningfulness, we then tested these drivers statistically and condensed our findings into four foundational building blocks driving meaningfulness for leaders and employees.

How are we doing at work?

Meaningfulness at work is still decreasing

Purpose
You feel a direction and impact in the work that you do, and you think that the purpose of the company aligns with your own moral compass and resonates with what you find important in life.

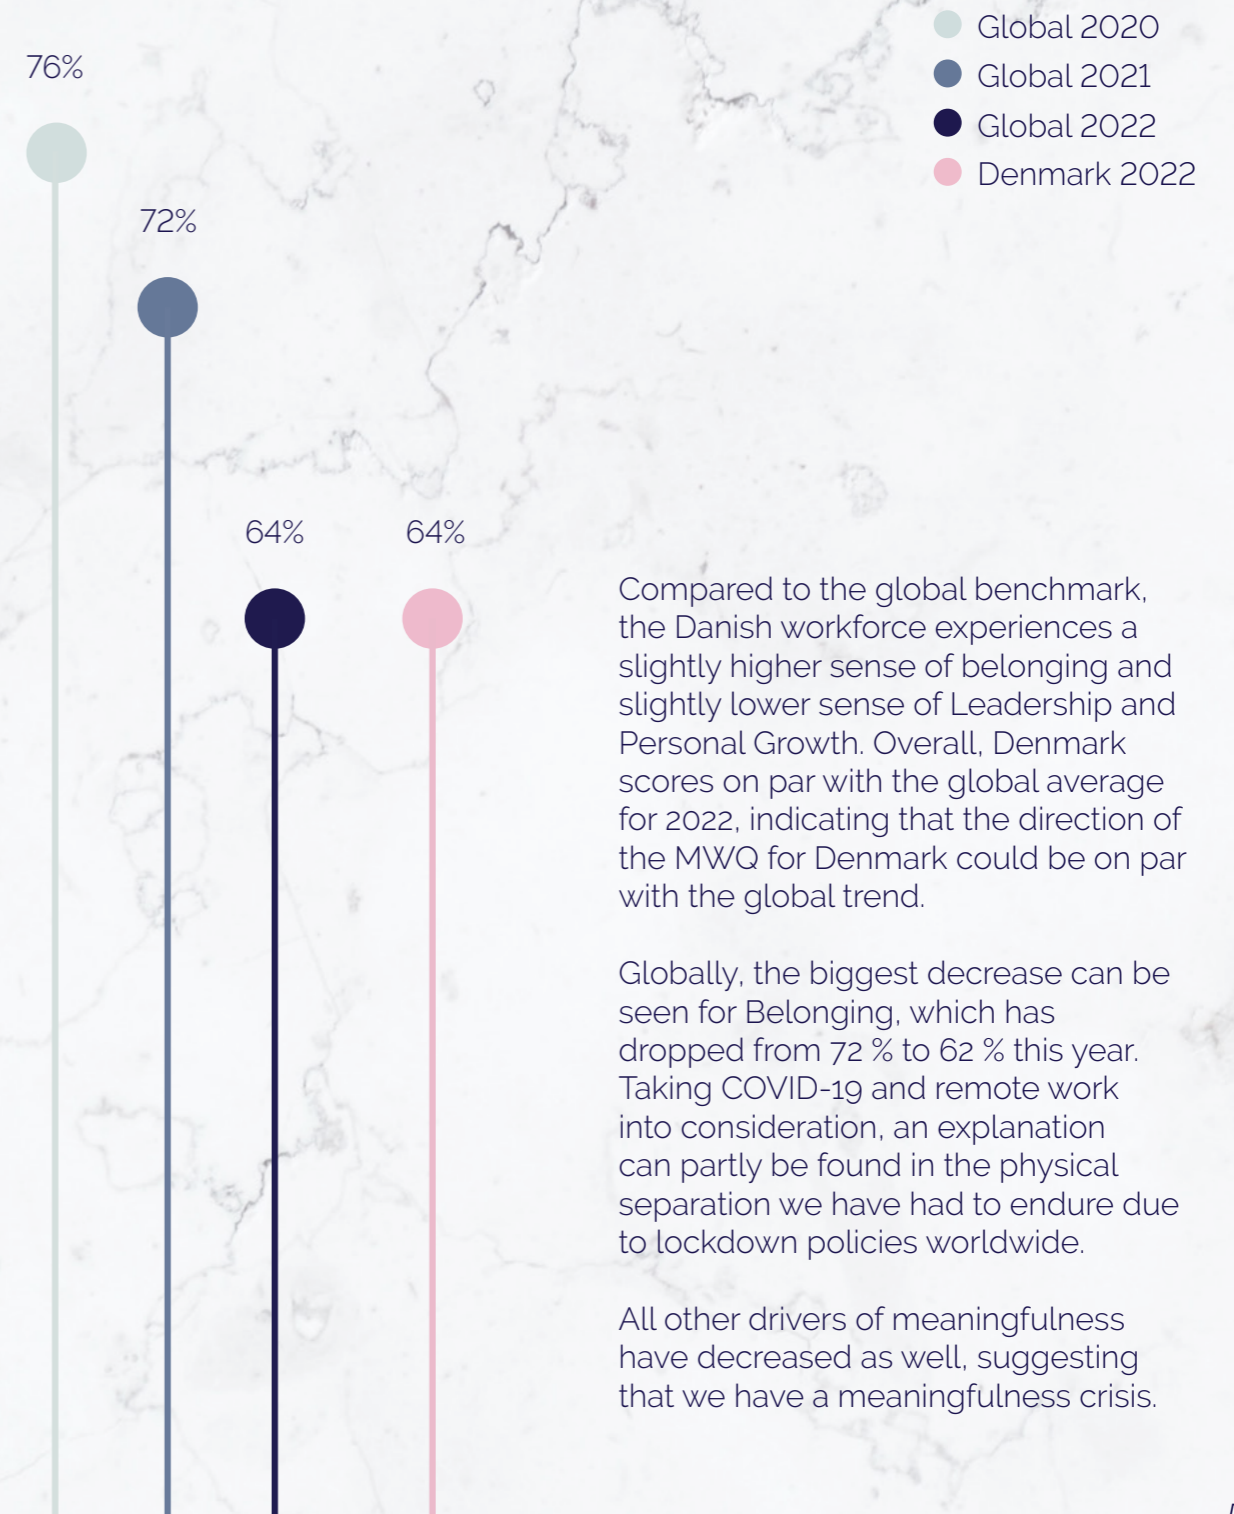

Belonging
You feel a sense of community and, in general, have strong social ties with your colleagues who you miss when you are not physically together at work.

Leadership
You feel guided in the work that you do every day and that it is prioritized and clear what your daily objectives are, as well as what you need to achieve.

Personal Growth
You feel that every day you become a little bit more aware of who you are, who you are not, as well as who you want and don't want to become, while given the feedback to develop accordingly.

National level

Meaningfulness at work in Denmark

Compared to the global benchmark, the Danish workforce experiences a slightly higher sense of belonging and slightly lower sense of Leadership and Personal Growth. Overall, Denmark scores on par with the global average for 2022, indicating that the direction of the MWQ for Denmark could be on par with the global trend.

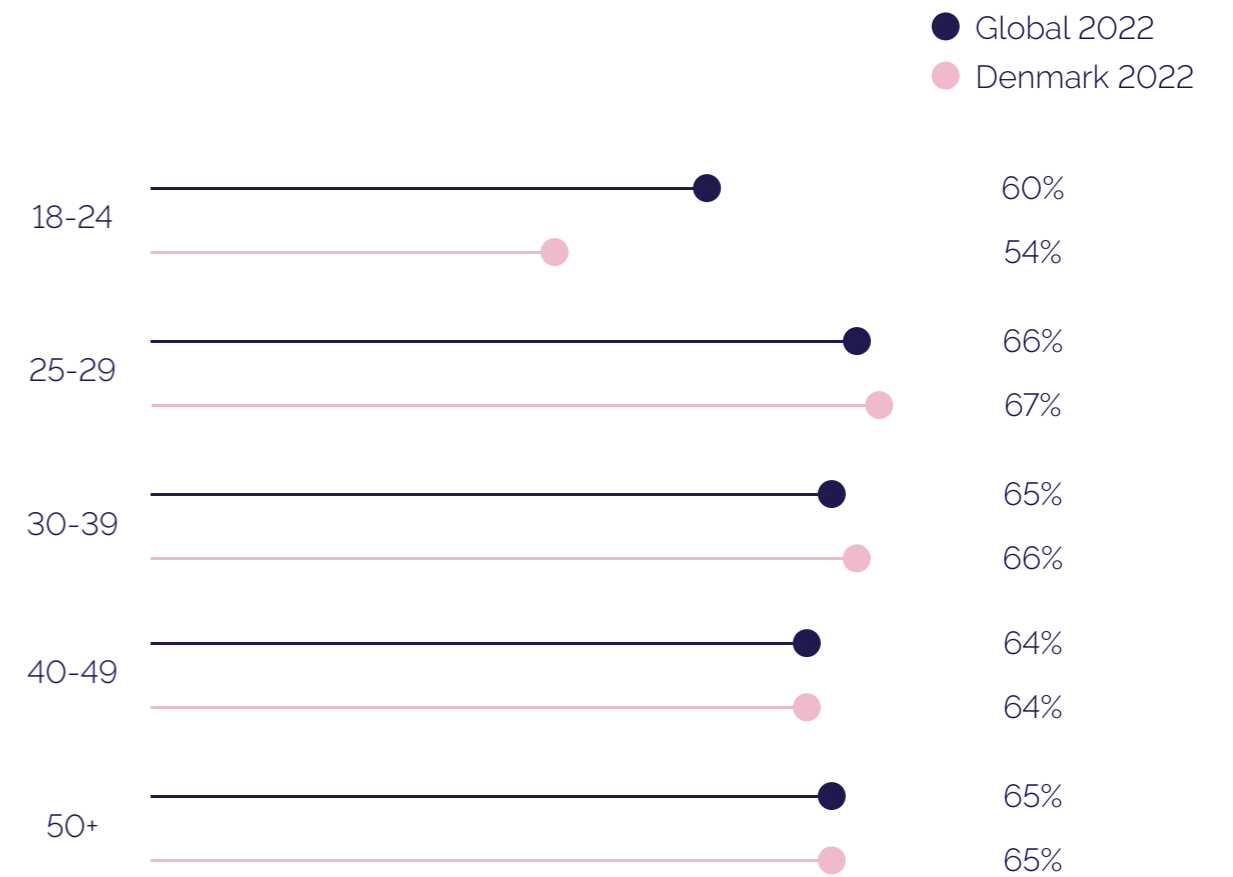

Globally, the biggest decrease can be seen for Belonging, which has dropped from 72 % to 62 % this year. Taking COVID-19 and remote work into consideration, an explanation can partly be found in the physical separation we have had to endure due to lockdown policies worldwide.

All other drivers of meaningfulness have decreased as well, suggesting that we have a meaningfulness crisis.

MWQ across age groups

The youngest Danes experience the least meaning at work

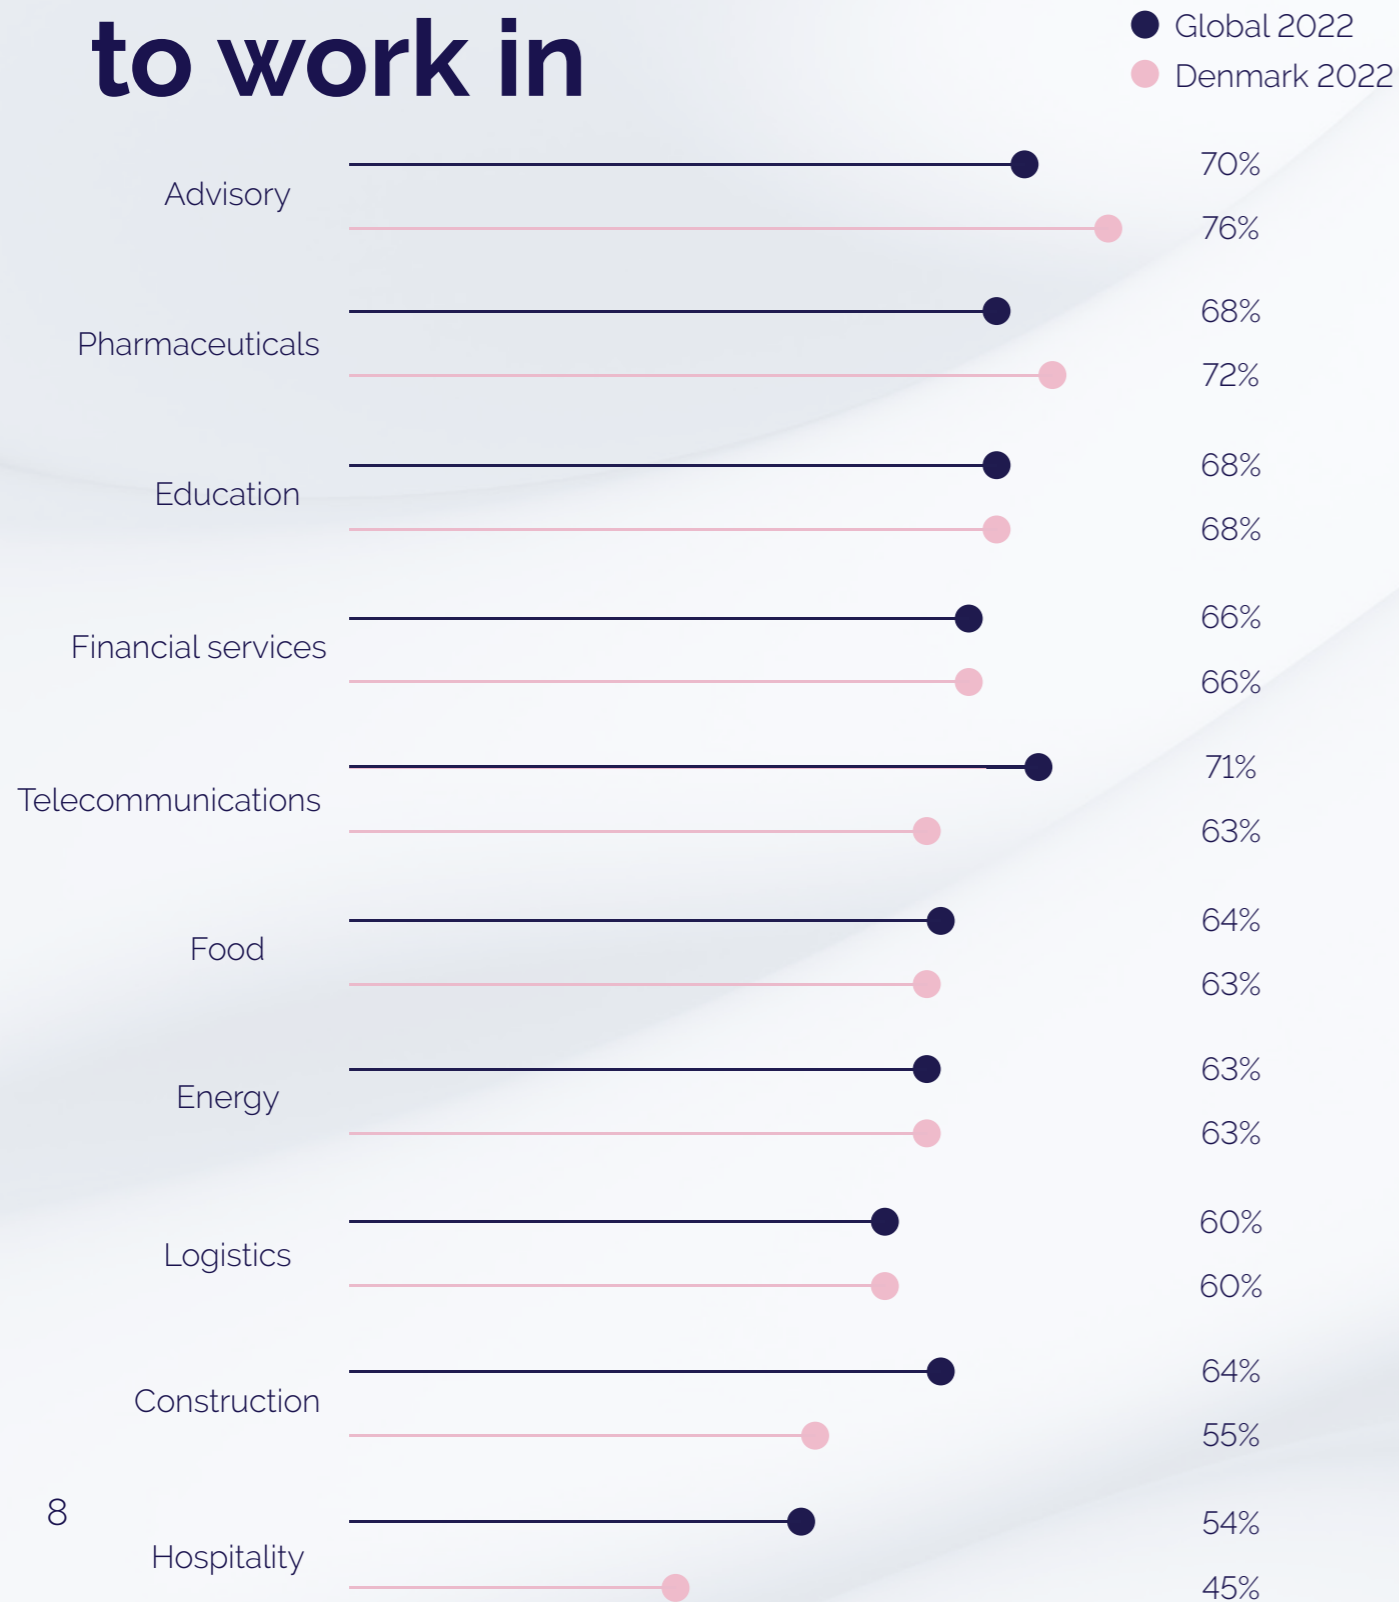

Looking at meaningfulness at work across age groups, the people aged 18-24 years, experience the lowest level of meaning at work. A tendency, visible both globally and in Denmark.

Even though, Denmark is on par with the global numbers in general, the youngest segment of Danes experience significantly less meaning at work, compared to their global age peers. Only 54 % of 18-24 year-old Danes agree or strongly agree that their work is meaningful.

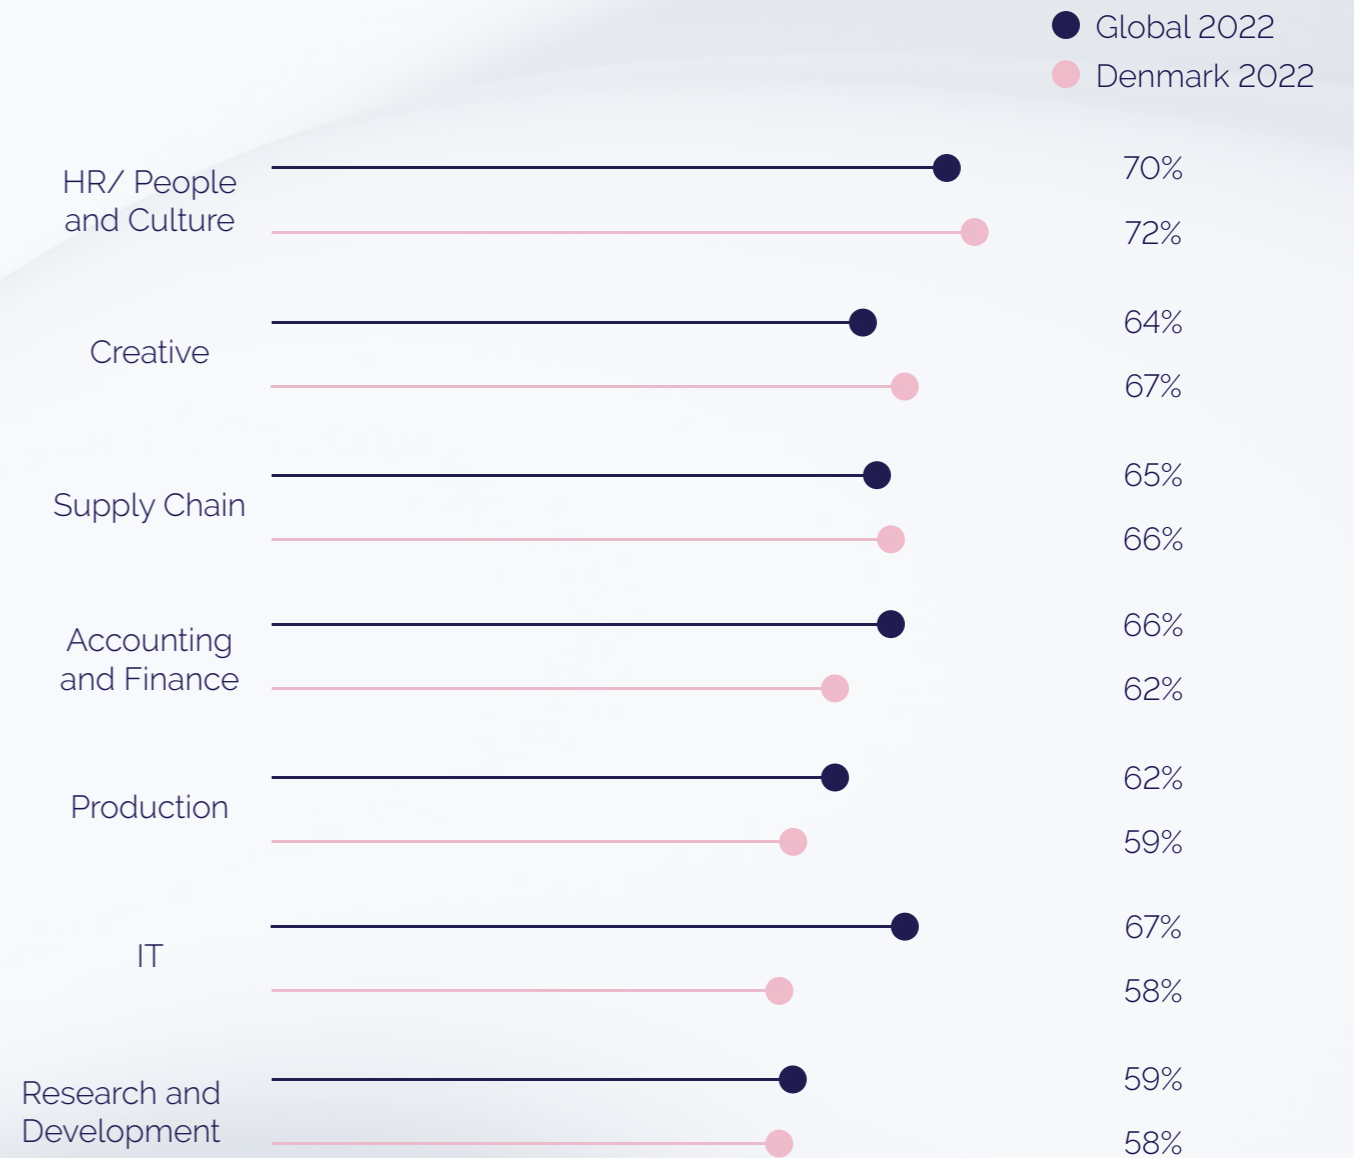

MWQ across industries

Advisory is the most meaningful industry to work in

MWQ across functions

People-driven functions experience higher level of meaning at work

To ensure reliability of the data, some industries and functions are excluded.

How are we doing at work?

Danes have the highest development potential in their sense of personal growth and leadership

Sense of Leadership and Sense of Personal Growth are the two most lagging drivers in Denmark at 61 % and 60 %.

Sense of Leadership is feeling of guidance in the work that you do every day and that it is prioritized and clear what your daily objectives are, as well as what you need to achieve.

The Sense of Personal Growth is the feeling, that every day you become a little bit more aware of who you are and who you want to become, while given the feedback to develop accordingly.

In our Global Meaningfulness Report, there are clear connections between driver statements in Leadership and Personal Growth, meaning that Leadership can either stimulate or block Personal Growth. It can be concluded from the Danish state of meaning that lack of clear guidance and presence of poor leadership suffocates the infrastructure for personal development, reflecting a sub-optimal relationship between leaders and employees, where a lack of guidance affects the possibility of realizing one's human potential.

Personal Growth

Leadership

Regain trust by moving from transactions to relations

Unfortunately, leadership has overlooked relational elements for too long - resulting in low levels of trust from employees.

In Denmark, almost half are unsure or disagree that their leader puts human dignity above economic success.

Denmark 2022

41%

Are either unsure or disagree that their CEO is a good human being ethically and morally

43%

Are unsure or disagree that their CEO cares about how the company earns money

49%

Are unsure or disagree that their leader puts human dignity above economic success

Three recommendations for leaders to create a Meaningful Organization

1

Diagnose the sense of meaningfulness and assess leadership

Measuring the level of meaningfulness that the employees experience in their work is the first step of creating more meaningful organizations. Such measures offer insights into how the employees' lives are impacted by work - which is inevitably an integral part of life. They also offer insights into how each leaders' behavior and ability to lead with purpose and along the company-DNA.

2

Conduct a "Cultural Due Diligence" on all People Processes

Review all steps of the employee journey - from attraction and recruitment to onboarding, development and retention. Does each step represent our culture and DNA? What original or surprising elements could you add to differentiate and amplify the culture you want to create? How can we optimize being a meaningful workplace - which structures or processes do we need to make more human?

Hire people who can shape your culture in a meaningful way

Poor cultural fit accounts for 89% of all hiring failures. Are you screening candidates for their self-awareness and cultural preference to assess whether they would thrive in your organization? If not, Voluntas has invented a tool for exactly that, which is tested and implemented across industries - from production and logistics to retail. The tool is applicable for M&A as well.
